BAKER PEGRAM⁴ AND DESCENDANTS

(D.A.R. 41775, 87448, 97472, 109742, 112014, 119742)

MAJOR BAKER PEGRAM⁴ (Edward³, Daniel², George¹), the eighth child of Edward Pegram³ and Mary Scott Baker, was born in Dinwiddie County, Virginia, 27 January 1758. He died there 14 October 1830. He married Mary Manson.

Baker Pegram was said to be a man of influence in his community. He was in the Revolutionary War (102) and was with Washington at the surrender of Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown, in October 1781 (6, 45).

The following appears in the Records of Dinwiddie County, Abstracts 1789, 1790, as reported in The William and Mary Quarterly (56):

Baker Pegram Captain, William Scott Lieutenant & Benjamin Andrews Ensign, of the Light Infantry in the Militia, severally took the oath required by the Militia Law & Act of Congress.

A list of soldiers of the Virginia Line on Continental Establishment who have received certificates for the balance of their full pay agreeable to an Act of Assembly passed November Session 1781 Pegram, Baker, Rev. Soldier of Va.: 23 Oct. 1783; Sum 17.9.6. Baker Pegram was in 6th. Va. G. Reg. W.D. 1271.

In 1781 Baker Pegram signed a petition of citizens adverse to the views of those who desire the enforcement of an act prohibiting immigration of certain persons, etc. . . . Edward and Daniel Pegram also signed the petition (51).

At Dinwiddie Court, 19 January 1789, Edward Young, orphan of Edward Young, made choice of Baker Pegram as guardian. Baker made bond for one thousand pounds, with Peter Manson as surety (6).

At Dinwiddie Court of August 1789 Baker Pegram was reappointed Inspector of the Tobacco Warehouses in Petersburg. He was the executor of the estate of John Manson, deceased. He presented his report to the court 19 July 1790, which was accepted and ordered to be recorded. Peter Manson and Gilliam Booth were also executors.

The land records of Dinwiddie County lists many tracts on which Major Pegram paid taxes during the period 1787-1820. Some of the land taxed during the period 1787 to 1790 follows:

Pegram, Baker, Capt., Major — 1787-1790 taxed on 200a & 240a. 1791-92 taxed on 200a and 180a conv. by Ben Andrews. 1793 taxed on additional 160a conv. by Instance Hall. 1794 taxed on addn. 200a conv. by George Pegram. The records continue to list parcels of land on which Baker Pegram paid taxes, through 1811 (42).

The land conveyed to Baker Pegram by Ben Andrews, 1791-92, is of some interest. Benjamin Andrews was the son of William and Elizabeth Oglesby Andrews. Elizabeth was the daughter of Patrick Oglesby, of New York and the widow of Colonel Daniel Baker. She was thus a half sister to Mary Scott Baker, wife of Edward Pegram³. As previously noted Benjamin married Jane Wilkins, and their son Wilkins Andrews married Susan Manson Pegram⁵, daughter of Baker Pegram and Mary Manson. Benjamin Andrews, who conveyed the land to Baker Pegram, was therefore the father of Baker's son-in-law, Wilkins Andrews.

Baker Pegram married Mary Manson about 1777. She may have been the daughter of Peter

Manson, but this is not authenticated. They had ten children. After the death of Mary, Baker married a Mrs. Jones, by which there was no issue.

The following obituary appears to be a deserved tribute to the life of Major Baker Pegram⁴.

Major Pegram was one of our most respected citizens. He was one of the gallant and ever to be revered band of worthies whose patriotism and valor achieved American Independence. Most of the hard fought battles of the Revolution witnessed the sincerity of his patriotism and the stern unwavering character of his valor.

Through life he was the steadfast friend of the right of men, whether civil, religious or political. As a christian he was true to the cause he professed. Interference with the opinion of others constituted, in his estimation, no part of the claim to Christian Character. He lived respected and lamented by a numerous and highly respected circle of friends.

(From Pegram (45) who copied it from the original.)

The issue of Baker Pegram and Mary Manson were EDWARD⁵, SUSAN MANSON, MARTHA, PETER, GEORGE, BENJAMIN, DANIEL, WILLIAM BAKER, MARY PETER, and NATHANIEL JAMES, presented below, with their descendants.

EDWARD PEGRAM⁵, son of Baker Pegram and Mary Manson, was probably born in Dinwiddie County, 14 February 1778. He died in Brunswick County, Virginia, 10 April 1824. Edward was a large scale planter and owned many slaves. He was said to have been a Mason, and to have lost a large sum of money through securities in connection with the building of a Temple for the Order. This necessitated the sale of many slaves, and it is said that the anxiety from the loss contributed to his death.

EDWARD⁵ was married to Rebecca Harper on 24 June 1799 by Peter Wynn. She was the daughter of Nathaniel Harper of Brunswick County, and was born 28 September 1777 and died 8 May 1850. (One source (57) listed Edward's wife as Julia Harper, but his great-granddaughter (41) gave her name as Rebecca, and she had a daughter named Rebecca. Fothergill (104) also listed her as Rebecca). Edward preceded his wife in death, and she, with all of her children, moved to Mooresville, Limestone County, Alabama, in 1824, the year of her husband's death. Rebecca Harper Pegram Cook was a person of some literary attainment. She was the author of a number of poems and verses. The following was written upon the death of her child Algernon.

Oh, who can feel a mother's woe,
Or who can tell her grief,
When she beholds her infant's pain
And cannot give relief.

See, its bright and beautiful eyes,
That soon must pale in death
To hear its faint and feeble sighs
And mark its strangling breath.

To meet those longing looks of love,
That seem to ask relief,
Yet, know its pain we cannot ease -
This is a mother's grief.

And then the little voice is hushed
Of that sweet one, in life the chief;
The solace of her mother's heart,
Say, what can calm that mother's grief,

It is the hope that Christ has given
Although its stay with her was brief
Her child is an angel bright in heaven
This, this can soothe a mother's grief.

SUSAN MANSON PEGRAM⁵, daughter of Baker Pegram⁴ and Mary Manson, was born in Dinwiddie County, Virginia in 1780. She married Wilkins Andrews, son of Benjamin Andrews and Jane Wilkins; and a brother of Baker Andrews, who married Mary Peter Pegram, Susan's sister. Susan died at City Point, Prince George County, Virginia. They had a DAUGHTER⁶ who married Richard Fraser, and they had a daughter, JANE⁷, born in 1834.

MARTHA PEGRAM⁵, daughter of Baker Pegram and Mary Manson, was born in Dinwiddie County in 1782. She married William E. Goode in 1814, the son of John and Martha Embree Goode of Brunswick County, Virginia. William died in 1825 and Martha in 1829. They had two children: MARTHA PEGRAM⁶ and WILLIAM HENRY.

MARTHA PEGRAM GOODE⁶ was born in 1814. She married Steven Perkins, and they had a son who died at the age of twenty one years, without issue.

WILLIAM HENRY GOODE, M.D.⁶, son of Martha Pegram and William E. Goode, was born in 1820, likely in Brunswick County, Virginia. He was a graduate of the Yale Medical College, class of 1842. In 1849 he married Elizabeth Morris, daughter of Owen C. Morris of Goochland County, Virginia.

Dr. Goode was a wealthy planter before the war, owning "Shannon Hill" in Goochland County, and was for many years connected with the Staunton Iron Works Company. Dr. Goode was for five years a student of Professor Draper at Hampton Sidney College, and at the University of New York. He was assistant in chemistry at the latter school, before and after he took his degree in medicine at Yale. He wrote:

I was connected in some way with nearly all the experiments and researches conducted by Dr. Draper. While I was his assistant at Hampton College (Sidney), he had discovered the principle of electrotyping, but turned it to no practical purpose. He took copies of some coins and medals but nothing more. (45).

In New York he was first to apply Daguerra's power of taking pictures of human faces. My face was the first ever photographed by that process, for I sat for the picture in the chapel of the University of New York within three days of the time Daguerra's pamphlet was received in New York. I was closely and intimately associated with Dr. Draper in his efforts to improve the camera and the process so that it could be used in taking pictures of man. Great advances were made in the laboratory, some by him and some by me. The cameras now used in photography is our joint production. The old iodine process was radically defective. (See contemporary file of Sillman's Journal.) Dr. Goode was also associated with Draper and Sillman in their first experiments in photography with electric light. (45, 79).

The issue of Dr. Goode and Elizabeth Morris were OWEN⁷, WILLIAM T., SUSAN PEGRAM, ELIZABETH EMBRY, JOHN VIVIAN, and ROBERT E.

OWEN MORRIS GOODE⁷ was born in 1850. He was in the tobacco business for the T.C. Williamson Company of Richmond.

William Baker attended school in a log cabin near his home, until sixteen years of age. He was apprenticed to the Wholesale House of Charles Kent of Petersburg, Virginia, but after about two years he went to sea. He was cabin boy on "The John Brown", and then Chief Mate. After a few years, with capital furnished by his father, he formed a business partnership with Wilkins Andrews, who married his sister, Susan Manson Pegram. Ill health again forced him to go to sea. He became Captain of a vessel, and was left at Port-au-Prince, Haiti with yellow fever. Nursed back to health by an old negro woman, he returned home, and promised not to go to sea again.

Obituary of Nathaniel James Pegram:

Died at ten minutes of five o'clock, on Thursday, May 31, (1866) N.J. Pegram, age sixty three years, a native of Dinwiddie County, Virginia, but for twenty six years a resident of this city.

A good man gone. . . . It was with no little sorrow that we noticed the death of our old and respected citizen N.J. Pegram at the advanced age of sixty three. During a residence of twenty six years, his name has become identified with the commercial interest of our city. A native of Virginia, he naturally assimilated with the manner and customs of our people; and his genial disposition, the sauvity of deportment and the benevolence of his nature endeared him to all classes of citizens. Never did the "sad minister of death" summon to the better world a purer, gentler spirit.

The large concourse of friends who accompanied his remains to their last resting place at Cypress Grove Cemetery on Friday morning testify his worth and the irreparable loss which his sudden demise has caused in our midst. (45).

Nathaniel Pegram and Mary Bryan had two children: HENRY BAKER⁶ and ELIZABETH TURNER.

HENRY BAKER PEGRAM⁶, son of Nathaniel Pegram and Mary Bryan, was born 12 June 1838, probably in Carrollton, Illinois, just before his parents moved to New Orleans. They lived at Fort Gibson, Mississippi. Henry Baker died 3 November 1915. There were seven children:
